While attending college, art classes were my favorite subjects. But, most of my knowledge was gained through books, the internet, experimentation, discussion with other artists; and simply trial and error.

Acrylic paint is my medium of choice. Incorporating a diverse array of interesting images is something I enjoy. Always studying, working, learning; challenging myself with new techniques and styles has been a life long passion. My work has naturally progressed as I find my inspiration seen along the road, traveling in other countries, or in fascinating photos.

You might say I “follow my nose” to whatever the next challenge may be.

My mind is constantly moving ahead to the next canvas, as I finish one painting I am already thinking about the next. I strive to paint each day and have been known to lose track of time when engrossed in my work.

I work in a small studio area in my home where the lighting is perfect to paint all kinds of subjects - abstracts and locales. As I continue to develop a repertoire, I hope to create as long as I can put a brush to canvas.
